Donald Trump Has Stake In Hydroxychloroquine Drugmaker: Report

The president has repeatedly touted the anti-malaria drug as a coronavirus treatment despite a lack of medical evidence.

The financial news site MarketWatch and The Washington Post later estimated Trump's stake to be worth between about $100 and $1,500, though the Post noted his trusts may have amassed other investments since his most recent disclosure. "He does look to have more than that modest sum invested in Sanofi, because, unmentioned in the Times report, his trusts also hold broader European stock-market index funds," MarketWatch pointed out.

Reporter: Beyond narcotics, are there other illicit activities that US assets are targeting?

POTUS: “There are the activities of human trafficking. And especially with respect to women...and as you know proportionately it’s mostly women. And it’s a horrible thing and there has never been a time like it. And it’s because of the internet. And this is all over the world but for the most part they are coming through, in this county, they are coming through the southern border...

...But we are hitting 'em very hard. They have tremendous illegal trafficking in women and children also, but mostly in women. And it's illegal and it's horrible and it's disgraceful and I have seen things that are an absolute disgrace. And we are trying to knock 'em out and we are knocking 'em hard.”

Governor David Ige says he has activated four units of the Hawaii National Guard as more medical supplies arrive in the state. As the pandemic continues, troops might also be used for other duties such as law enforcement.

“Effective immediately, there will be more than 250 men and women on state active duty. They will provide assistance to the Hawaii Emergency Management Operations Center, the State of Hawaii’s Joint Information Center, and support the receiving and distribution of medical supplies and PPE (Personal Protective Equipment) from the national strategic stockpile,” said the governor.

The Playboy Mansion is getting a serious facelift ... and while other businesses across Los Angeles have come to a screeching halt, the crib's construction crew rages on.

We've obtained several photos of the mansion taken Thursday, just outside one of the side entrances. The storied estate is fully enveloped in scaffolding ... there's also excavation equipment.

Once we OPEN UP OUR GREAT COUNTRY, and it will be sooner rather than later, the horror of the Invisible Enemy, except for those that sadly lost a family member or friend, must be quickly forgotten. Our Economy will BOOM, perhaps like never before!!!
